

COLOR ME CRAZY!

Meet someone who makes the coolest coloring books on earth.

Fireball Tim doesn't only have an awesome name, he also has a pretty awesome business. When he isn't designing vehicles for movies and TV shows like Batman, Jurassic Park, and Monster Garage, he creates world-famous car coloring books that kids (and their parents) obsess over. This fall, he released his 32nd book, Station Wagons, which you can get at fireballtim.com.

"I love to draw character cars — anything where you take a regular car and then add things like rocket launchers, huge motors, or even wings," Fireball told R&T Crew. "It's fun to make things up that would never exist in real life, like adding wheels to a watermelon being driven by a worm!"

Grab some crayons or markers and get creative with one of Fireball's wildest drawings below. But before you do, listen to his advice: "I'm definitely a color-inside-the-lines guy, because that's tougher. It builds your skills, trains your eye, and teaches you to be patient. But always have fun!"
