

COOP'S CORNER

Road & Track artist Coop teaches you how to create your own car cartoon character.

Inventing your own cartoon characters is super fun. Speech bubbles are a great way to reveal your character's attitude ("Time to go fast!"), and there are little things you can do with your drawing that help show its emotions. Take a look at these examples and try working them into your own creations!

SHY GUY

Got a quiet, nervous character in mind? Make their eyes look up and inward and the hood bowed down (like a puppy dog who is afraid they're in trouble). Also try having the wheels go in slightly different directions, like someone whose legs are nervously shaking.

MAD DOG

Want to invent a villain (or a car that's just in a bad mood)? Draw crinkled down eyebrows, like a hungry animal searching for prey. Add big, sharp teeth and rugged tires leaning out like they just ran over something. Get outta the way!

SPEED DEMON

If your character loves to drive fast, here's how to make them look super speedy and excited. Give them a big grill smile, make their eyes wide open (like someone excited to open a present), and give them big ol' tires that are ready to rip!
